

Indigenous Peoples Policy

Galore Creek respects the rights, cultures, interests, and aspirations of Indigenous Peoples and is committed to building strong and lasting relationships that help us understand and include Indigenous perspectives into our activities, operations, and approach throughout the project lifecycle.

Galore Creek engages with Indigenous Peoples to:

- Build respectful relationships through early, inclusive dialogue and collaborative processes
- Build capacity for meaningful engagement and participation
- Work collaboratively to protect cultural heritage resources and cultural values
- Work to achieve and maintain free, prior, and informed consent through early involvement and collaborative efforts, and
- Understand and act on community development goals by supporting an inclusive community investment program, including partnering to address the priorities and goals of Indigenous Communities.

Galore Creek is committed to responsible resource development and recognizes that building relationships with Indigenous Peoples is fundamental to our success. We are guided by the policies and standards in use by our owners Teck and Newmont; the United Nations Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (UNDRIP); the ICMM Position Statement on Indigenous Peoples and Mining; the Global Industry Standard on Tailings Management (GISTM); and our policies and procedures for inclusive and progressive collaboration with Indigenous Peoples.

A handwritten signature in black ink that reads "Rob Mean".

Rob Mean
Project Director
Galore Creek Mining Corporation

Gabe Jutras
Director - Social, Environmental, and Regulatory Affairs
Galore Creek Mining Corporation